On a Positive Note

The Sisterhood of the Traveling Wine Facebook group, which was first founded to spread joy by leaving bottles of wine on the doorsteps of strangers, friends, and neighbors has grown tremendously over the past few months. Cara Rindell, who brought the movement to Raleigh, North Carolina said they boast 51,000 members who find wine lovers in their communities and surprise them with an anonymous wine basket after ringing the doorbell and running. The group has expanded to 10 states and focuses on bringing some unexpected joy to their communities. Cara is also looking to make the group even bigger by creating a "Brotherhood of Booze and Beer", a group for children, and another for the elderly. She says the main point of the group is to start with a random act of kindness to a stranger and potentially become a friendship with a neighbor you didn't know you had!
